Redbarns, West Cornwall, Conn. Nov. 18, '24.

Mr. Chas. F. Lummis,
My Dear Mr. Lummis,

I am much interested in your collection "Flowers of our Lost Romance." Especially so as during a sojourn of mine in Spain, Andalusia, I gathered from the lips of the singers, peasants, goshierds, and strolling guitar-players, many of their unwritten coplas, as I had heard them weirdly chanted in Moorish-sounding tunes, from their lips. Your book must be fascinating and I doubt not that many of these Californian coplas came from the malaguenas, solares, guajires etc that I used to hear.

If you would ever like any of these coplas I collected, I could send you copies.

However, I cannot at the present time afford to buy your book, as there are too many demands on a slender purse.

With regrets and thanks for the letter,

Yours sincerely,

Flourne W. Evans

Mrs Florence Wilkinson Evans, Redbarns, West Cornwall, Conn.

My dear Mrs. Evans:

Your interesting note of Nov. 18th has been buried in the big Drift--pardon my slowness in acknowledging it.

You must have had a very interesting time at Andalusia, the merriest Province of Spain. My wonderful Old Pancho Amate, last of the Trobadors, was Andaluz;
and for six years my house rang with his innumerable Songs. I should indeed be interested to see the Coplas you collected and will be your debtor for copies. As an earnest of good Faith I am glad to send you a copy of my "Spanish Songs of Old California" with my compliments.

With best regards,

Sincerely Yours,
